Office with Environmental Credentials

The managed offices have been procured to ensure that they achieve a 'Very Good' BREEAM rating. A key aspect of the scheme is the use of renewable energy to provide heating and cooling to the building. The system employs Ground Source Heating and Cooling to serve the air conditioning units located in the ceiling of each office. Heat or coolth is extracted from the ground via a series of pipework loops sunken some 100m into the ground, and delivered to the building to maintain the desired office environmental conditions.
